PREACH PROHIBITION; PRACTICE OTHERWISE

Henry Wales, writing to the Chicago Tribune from Paris, says among other things:

"The American commission to negotiate peace is sitting on top of a volcano which they fear will begin erupting any moment when the Republicans begin probing the expenditures of the peace conference at

"Secretary Joseph Crew today is worried because somebody gave permission to the waiters to open a hundred bottles of champagne at the peace commission dance in the Hotel de Crillon dining room which lasted until just before daybreak this morning. The Crillon is supposed to be bone dry.

"The Crillon comprises 280 rooms with a capacity of 400 guests and has been jammed with non-paying members of the peace commission since it opened last November. Commissioners Lansing. House. White, and Gen. Bliss lived there with their families and staffs, and also various experts who composed special commissions.

"The Crillon kept its original French staff of employes, numbering 216, and added 150 American doughboys as electricians and plumbers. There also are doormen, elevator men, clerks, Cooks, orderlies, Thus there aland messengers. ways was an average of one servant for every guest in the hotel.

"Seventy big automobiles, chiefly luxurious limousines, always were parked in the Place de la Concorde for members of the peace commission when they wished to attend conferences or to go racing through the Bois de Bologne.

"Nobody knows how Uncle Sam must pay the Crillon owners monthly, because no definite sum ever was fixed. The proprietors of the Crillon property, however, have already filed a claim with the peace commission for 2,000,000 francs allowance for loss of clientele through the fact the hotel was closed to regular customers. It is expected another staggering bill will be presented for wear and tear on the Crillon and its furniture.

"Booze is available at the Crillon through the fact the owners had to leave fully stocked wine cellars there. When the peace commission took over the hotel they demanded that the wine be removed. It was pointed out that disturbing and shipping the old vintage wine ruined it and that transferring the musty, cobwebbed bottles would permit the Crillon owners to institute demands for heavy damages for ruining the wine.

"Then when the first official banquets at which foreign diplomats were invited were given at the Crillon by members of the commission. served to appease foreign appetites. After wine was once served at these banquets to the commissioners they could not refuse to serve wine in the to them, and set for hearing ex parte. dining rooms to the various experts and attaches at meals. With wine lished for four consecutive weeks in served at luncheon and dinner, the next step was serving cocktails and paper published in Cookeville, Tenn. highballs in the rooms, and thus the Crillon became wide open."

It appears that booze is not the only thing these august representa-tives of prohibition America enjoy, as there is a servant for each and expensive autos for their royal nibe to ride in, and you will notice some of them have their families with them. Of course all these expenses are paid out of the public funds.

It is time congress not only probed such matters, and probing is not all thas should be done.
